There is a higher chance of alumni from private university donating more than the public university.

But the median cost of attending a public university can save you anywhere between $2000 -8000 based on the selectivity of the university.

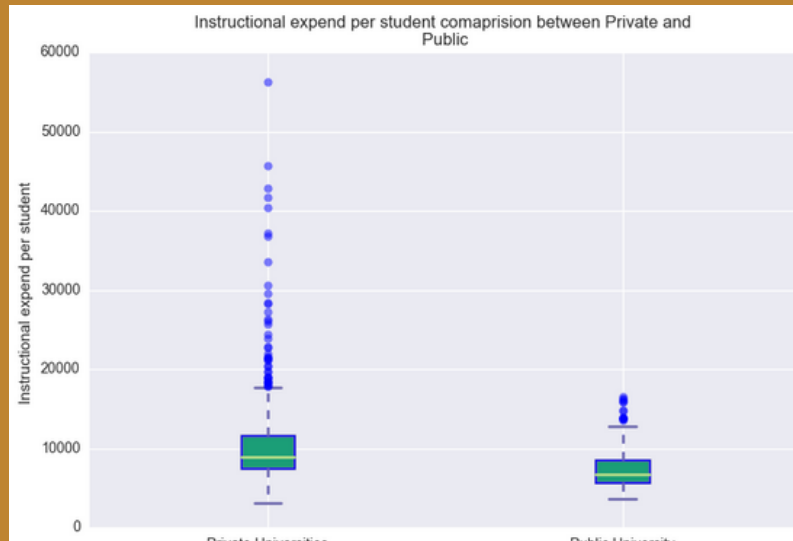

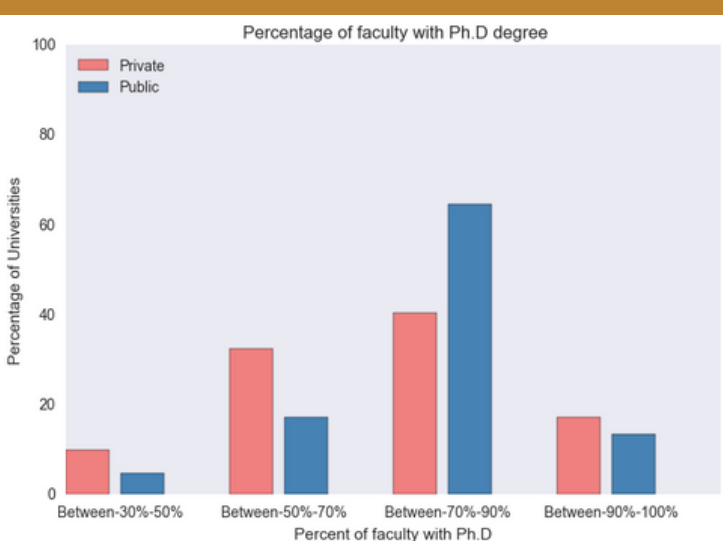

But private university enjoys a higher median graduation rates up to 33 %.

.. But with the increase in the acceptance rates for private university >80 % the difference in median of graduation rate drops from 33 to just 15.

On an average there is more faculty at private universities with Ph.D

But there is only marginal difference between the median instructional expenditure per student, up to $1000

Private university must be a top choice if:

- You wish to stay in a large city and suburban area.
- Are interested in courses that are 4 year or longer
- Have access to more funds for out of state tuition and room and board cost
- If you're concerned about graduation rates.

Public university must be a top choice if:

- Have low funds but expenditure per student is your priority
- Are interested in courses which are less than 4 years length.
- Wish to stay in town and rural area
